Crystals are said to have formed over 4.5 billion years ago. Almost all of the Earth is formed from crystals, except parts that are molten. Crystals have been used for as long as civilisation has existed. Our world is connected via crystalline structures that we call ley lines and vortexes. The human body is also connected to the energy field of our planet via a grid. Crystals all carry their own energy signature and can be used for multiple purposes. They have the ability to store, focus and emit energy. By using crystals, we raise and alter our own vibrations which can be done by removing blocks, transmuting energies or dis-ease, and therefore, creating and restoring balance and so much more.
